ABEJAR (SORIA)

29TH EUROLAMBRETTAJAMBOREE SPAIN

Soria is the province least populated in Spain, second to Teruel and one of the nicest.

It is located on the banks of the upper Duero River, the largest river basin in the Iberian peninsula. The Duero is born here, in the Picos de Urbión and dies at the Atlantic Sea at Oporto (Portugal). Its climate is oceanic with temperatures in June ranging from averages of 25°C to 10°C.

Of medieval and historical character, Soria counts on a superb catalog of religious and civil monuments nailed in a region that combines the Castilian plains with the most spectacular pine forests of the Peninsula. The city of Numancia, symbol of the resistance of the Celtiberian peoples to the Roman Empire in the second century BC, was located 7kms north of the provincial capital, and its ruins can be visited.

Its gastronomy is rich and stands out within that Castilian table with its mycological variety, "niscalos" and boletus amongst them, and its truffle, the "black diamond" of the Spanish cuisine. In addition, Soria is known for its "Wigas de Pastor", pastoral heritage, the soulful "caldereta", bull, lamb and all derivatives of pork: all kinds of Iberian "embutidos" (sausages), "torrenillos", butter... And to water it all, its exquisite wines with denomination of origin Ribera del Duero and its particular alcoholic lemonade...

Surroundings:

Cañon del Rio Lobos:

The Lobos river forms an incredible karstic narrow pass where the riverbed forms an immense and natural landscape. The river goes with its typical vegetation. This place is also a Natural Park. The griffon vultures have found here the perfect habitat.

Laguna Negra:

In the heart of Urbión. An ascent around free and wild landscapes, snow-covered in winter and shaded in summer. There you can find this amazing glacial lake.

Abejar:

This village is situated in the province of Soria, only 28 km west from the Capital city and at an altitude of 1,138 mts. It is denominated "The door of Pine groves" and located on the banks of "Cuerda del Pozo" Dam. This place is door to the "Urbion Pinewood" and the initial river Duero basin. Abejar is surrounded by pines, oaks and junipers. Its micological richness, its history and its traditions make Abejar a privileged and ideal place if you want to discover different leisure ways.

Picos de Urbión:

A great invitation for trekking. There you can find "Castroviejo", a wonderful viewpoint where the erosion created an incredible enchanted city, "Serena cave" and its waterfall, "Peñas Blancas".

La Fuenteña:

It is near Calatañazor (historical medieval village). This tertiary place was declared Natural Monument. It is an underground lagoon which flows with frozen clear waters.
